SGR1100 - Students At Risk for Promotion

Grade Reporting > Reports > Grade Reporting Reports > Student Verification > SGR1100 - Students At Risk for Promotion

This report lists students who are at risk of not being promoted to the next grade level. Early identification of these students allows campus staff to schedule students for an extended year or other special programs.

- The main (summary) report list students, their guardian and contact data, and reason(s) for being listed on the report.
- The detailed report provides specific information about the reason the student is at risk.

The following reasons are considered when determining if a student is at risk for promotion:

- Failed Course - The student is failing one or more graded courses. The course-section and failing grade is displayed on the detailed report.
- Failed STAAR 3-8 or STAAR EOC - The student failed a STAAR 3-8 or STAAR EOC test in the current school year.
  - The administration date and test type for which the student did not meet the minimum expectations is displayed on the detailed report.
  - The report does not consider a student's TAKS test results.
- Course Absences - The student's number of absences in a course-section either meets or exceeds the number entered in the Number of Course Days Excessive parameter. The detailed report displays the number of absences for each course-section for the semester in which the report was run.
- ADA Absences - The student has excessive ADA period absences, which can lead to the student failing to attend school for the minimum required attendance days. The detailed report displays the number of absences for each course-section for the semester in which the report was run.
- Less Than Minimum Credit - The student has not earned sufficient course credits for the specified semester(s). The detailed report displays the student's total credits earned for all graded courses in the semester for which the report is run.

NOTE: If a student is at risk because of a failed course and does not have a semester or final grade for a course, the Sem and Fin fields are blank.
